

In addition American students studying abroad under the same program introduced their new foster parents. Several students who had recently returned from their United States' studies, passed on helpful information to those about to embark on the trip.

Perhaps the highlight of the day's visit was an afternoon cruise on one of the accompanying destroyers to give the teenagers a first-hand look at the modern U. S. Navy.

When the ship arrived in Subic Bay, Manila, Kobe, and Yokosuka, special programs were arranged for these students to meet the people who will sponsor their year of study. On these four occasions, morning receptions were held on board the KEARSARGE for the students and sponsors to get acquainted and for them to meet Admiral Townsend. In many instances, these young people brought their parents.
