

Reenlistment

Making the choice to continue a Naval Career is a serious decision that a person should ponder before making a decision. There is a certain amount of pride in making a career decision that a civilian job can not provide. Each reelistee may choose how and where they wish to enlist. Although most are conducted on the mess decks or in a workspace, some sailors do make unusual requests. FCC (SW) Matthews chose to reenlist at a swim call jumping off the ship and out of the Navy, reenlisting in the water, and climbing back onboard as a new sailor. OS1 (SW) McBride chose to reenlist high above the crew. No matter where they reenlist, some things never change - honor, courage, and commitment to the U.S. Navy.